Andrews Federal Credit Union Hosts Students for a “Job Shadowing Day”

Suitland, MD (February 13, 2009) – On February 11, 2009, Andrews Federal Credit Union hosted 5 students from Potomac Job Corps Center, an educational and workforce training academy located in Washington, DC. The purpose of the event was to educate students about the credit union industry and the variety of career opportunities available.

The students began the day with a welcome message from Adam Corcoran, Andrews Federal’s Chief Operating Officer, that encouraged students to ask a lot of questions and to take advantage of every opportunity offered to them. Students also received a tour of the credit union, a workshop on job searching and interviewing skills, and other presentations from subject matter experts in the fields of lending, member service, operational compliance, and marketing.

“We were excited to welcome these students to our facility so we could show them what a credit union is all about,” stated Adam Corcoran. “We hope that the knowledge they gained will encourage them to consider a credit union when they are looking at career opportunities in the future.”

Potomac Job Corps Center is located in Southwest Washington, DC and is a residential, educational and career technical training program for “at promise” youth ages 16 through 25.
